In order to elucidate the mechanism of its toxicity, the influence of 1,4-dioxane on the humoral immunity of mice was investigated. The following methods were used: 1) the in vitro effect of 1,4-dioxane was studied by the rosette-forming ability of mouse lymphocytes, and the effects on the mitogenic response of mouse lymphocytes to phytohemagglutinin (PHA) and concanavalin A (Con A), 2) the in vivo effect of

1,4-dioxane was examined using the thymus, the spleen, and the number of immunocompetent cells in the spleen. The in vitro effect was also investigated after a single intraperitoneal injection of 1,4-dioxane. 1,4-Dioxane inhibited both the antibody-forming cell (AFC) response to mitogens and the in vitro rosette formation. The effect of 1,4-dioxane was dependent on the time after dosing. The percentage of red blood cells bearing Fc receptors was significantly decreased in the presence of 1,4-dioxane. The in vivo effect of 1,4-dioxane was observed on the humoral immunity by a single injection. Administration of 1,4-dioxane decreased the percentage of spleen cells that belonged to the Thy-1.2+ (Fc gamma R+) antigen-bearing population in the MRC OX19-positive population.
