The Time Bomb app can turn your iPhone into a makeshift bomb shelter. Which is something that everyone should know if there is some kind of emergency? While checking out this app I noticed that this does exactly what it says. From their website: 'Make yourself scarce... or make yourself appear to be a bomb. A false alarm, if you will. If there were an emergency, a simple knock on the door might be the only way to warn of an intruder. And you would want to look your best. Enter The Time Bomb: a watch that turns your iPhone into a portable, reliable bomb shelter that lets you turn off your notifications from your social media apps. All you have to do is turn on the Time Bomb, which is on a cord around your neck. And, when you want to check your messages, you can activate the Time Bomb's app to check your notifications, record a message, or send it to a friend.'

CONS The Time Bomb is very bulky. Numerous explosions. What are your thoughts on this new idea? Have you ever used a similar app? Comment below! Thanks for watching! screetime is a Windows program that allows you to create a personalized audio file that can be played back during breaks, so you can take a refreshing break and rest your eyes. A nice touch are the motivational phrases that can be played back during breaks. What's New in this Release: screetime 1.2 is the first maintenance release. Most notable are the changes to the Watchlist view for easier navigation and faster search results, and a fix for a crash issue. Improving imaging workflow for ultrasound-guided fine needle aspiration cytology. Ultrasound-guided fine needle aspiration cytology (US-FNA) is an accurate means of both diagnosing and evaluating thyroid nodules. In most institutions it is performed as part of a full thyroid ultrasound examination by a radiologist. When performed by a radiologist, the time taken to image each nodule is not monitored and target size and number are often missed. This study investigated whether ultrasound-guided needle sampling (with ultrasound-guided techniques) could lead to fewer missed nodules, better diagnostic accuracy, fewer false positive results and a decrease in the time taken to perform the procedure. A descriptive study was performed where US-FNA was carried out by a radiologist in the normal sequence, while that performed by an endocrinologist (M.L.) used a straight-table endocrinology platform to sample all nodules identified as suspect on normal thyroid ultrasound. A cyto-histological correlation was obtained. Nodules were also sampled at two hospitals, using a prototype gel-filled device. 107 nodules were imaged by US-FNA and 103 were sampled. A cyto-histology correlation was obtained for 93 cases (88.5%). Needle sampling was more successful in the study hospital (88.1% vs. 72.4%). False-positive results occurred in 7 of 93 (7.5%) and the duration of the procedure was 16.2 minutes versus 22.1 minutes. Nodules sampled using a gel-filled device took 4.1 versus 12.6 minutes. The authors discuss the value of an endocrinology-led US-FNA. Tuesday, September 9, 2008 With The Pacific Land The U.S. has a Right to Alienate it's Own Pacificists The United States used to be proud of its position of power in the Pacific, the world's largest oceans. America's Pacific-bound ambitions seem to be in shambles.
