

The Elite Player Performance System has also been revised to support the new-look game, with new attributes and new learning algorithms. "Challenge" features in the game, which provide players with more aggressive on-pitch options in a game, have also been revised. Goalkeeper and defender AI has also been improved, with new tackling mechanics and greater awareness of their surroundings and passing options. The "Ultimate Team" mode has also been overhauled, with a new set of challenges that focus on fast-paced, tournament-style matches. Both brand new and revised Pro Clubs have also been announced, with the "Last Ball" format, a new format for the "Superclásico" match and new Featured Player content added to the "Legends" team. FIFA 22 will be released worldwide on PlayStation 4, Xbox One, and PC on September 28, 2017.

Tibor Benkő Tibor Benkő (10 December 1936 – 28 February 2015) was a Hungarian politician, who served as Minister of National Development between 1995 and 1998. He was a member of the National Assembly from 1988 to 1995. Early life and education He was born into a working-class family in Budapest on 10 December 1936. After finishing elementary and secondary schools in Budapest, he studied in the Faculty of Law of the Széchenyi István University and graduated as a lawyer. In 1958 he started his career as a civil servant, and in 1959 he started his work in the Foreign Trade Office of the Ministry of National Development. From 1964 to 1986 he was the Head of the Department of Legal Affairs and Human Rights. Political career In the general elections held in 1989 he was elected MP for the first time from the Hungarian Socialist Party (MSZP). The results of the 1990 parliamentary elections showed that MSZP, with the new leader Antal Szekeres, obtained more votes than Fidesz. MSZP successfully challenged Fidesz, which began to use a parliamentary majority to increase its power. The replacement of Szekeres by Miklós Németh damaged the MSZP. The electoral results of the 1994 Hungarian parliamentary elections showed that MSZP and Fidesz were again the most successful party. Németh was replaced by András Schiffer as leader of the party in 1995. Shortly before the 1996 parliamentary elections, Németh resigned from his position. Schiffer became the leader
